

ABSTRACT OF THE DISCLOSURE

The system includes a computer for transmitting news information and a computer communicably connected to the computer for receiving the news information. The 5 computer outputs the content of the news information as voice in an order predetermined based upon the content of the received news information, and displays an animation, which imitates a speaking individual, in conformity with the voice output. The user is thus 10 capable of acquiring desired news information with facility.